*Calculation derived from an average list size of 10,000 patients and so is for illustration purposes only. Local list size, demographics and epidemiological factors will affect rates at a local level. We recommend looking at your national cancer registry’s or primary care data hub’s website for accurate local information.

There are around 360,000 new cancer cases diagnosed in the UK every year.

That’s about 60 new cases of cancer for every 10,000 patient practice*
